

Abstract

After a brief review of ADD model, we discuss sub-millimeter black holes in this context. We then propose some questions that will help us to better understand some fundamental concepts of physics. In the end, we discuss the possibility of observing the hypothetical black-holes produced by high energy cosmic rays by neutrino telescopes.