

Abstract

Since the formation of stars mostly takes place in molecular clouds, most stars belong to a group or cluster of stars at the beginning of their life cycle. The purpose of our study is to find out if some of the analogues of our sun are still in the solar neighborhood.