

Abstract

After briefly reviewing the role that CHOOZ reactor experiment has played in constraining the value of neutrino mixing angle θ_{13} , we will discuss the prospect of improving the bounds by updates of this experiment. In the last ten minutes of the seminar, we shall briefly review the capability of such neutrino of monitoring the reactor core.