

Abstract

Recently, non-thermal hard X-ray emission from the Ophiuchus has been discovered. In this talk, we review the hypothesis that this emission originates from dark matter annihilation. This hypothesis can be tested by upcoming GLAST results. This talk is based on the recent paper by Stefano Profumo, arXiv:0801.0740.