

Abstract

In this talk, I will review brief history of reheating and some main works on this subject. According to inflationary theory , almost all elementary particles populating the universe were created during the process of reheating of universe after inflation. Reheating after inflation occurs due to particle production by the oscillating inflation field .