In this talk, I will present a single field inflationary model, which predicts observable local non-Gaussianity, in contrast with the so called "consistency relation". I will also discuss, with some details, how one should modify the different approaches for calculating non-Gaussainity to be applicable for such models.