

The observed dipole asymmetry in Cosmic Microwave Background radiation may have originated from the modulations of super-horizon long wavelength modes. In this talk, I will first focus on some basic concepts of cosmological perturbation theory. Next I will show different aspects of asymmetries generated from the long wavelength mode modulations from power spectrum of tensor perturbation to late time acceleration.

Refs: arXiv:1306.6932